1. Chapter 1

And here is another fic that won't leave alone. Hope you enjoy.

Chapter I

A beautiful woman smiled as she picked up her young child that hatched a few days ago. Her crown shone beautifully telling everyone she is queen of their people, her eyes landed on her oldest son, he would be the next heir seeing that he had his flower-flame mark on his left side. Her young had his on his right side of his hip, meaning that he is an omega and a rare one at that. When someone is an omega, then they are very fertile and produce strong children, stronger than of a female's; she knew that her son will be fought over when he is ready to mate with the one he loves. Her face turns to see her mate, he did not take the news well and swore he will protect their young omega from all of those 'evil' beasts.

"He is just sleeping," she smiled as he held the both of them in his arms.

The young child was sound asleep without a care in the world in his mother's arms, both smiled in content, he took after his mother as his father had raven-hair with silver eyes. His mother had long thick strands of brown hair reaching past her waist, a light-green

Victorian dress adorned her petite body, her brown eyes shone with a gentle expression and love only held for those of her family.

"Your majesty, you are to meet the royal Hawkans," one of their guards said as he knelt down before them.

"Bring in my son, he is almost of the age where he needs to be here with us." the king said walking ahead as the queen put back her sleeping son.

"An alliance will do us good with the Hawkans, and since they are allies to the dragons, we can soon be in peace and let our people know that our forces are growing stronger." she smiled walking with him.

"Yes, and today we sign and by next month we will be celebrating our alliance." he said and both walked downstairs as the guards open doors for them.

"Your majesties," the others bowed, the man had black hair with brown eyes, the woman has short light-brown hair with silver eyes and in her arms is a small child no older than two, he has black hair with silver eyes and he looked up at them with curiosity.

"I'm glad you had accepted our alliance, Takao of the Hawkan royalty." both bowed as they began to talk, the two queens smiled and went out to the gardens.

"How old is he?" the queen asked.

"He is one spring old," queen Takao replied as her son giggled walking away when she put him down.

"I have two sons, one is ten summers old while the other is only a few days hatched." she smiled.

"Very good, hopefully we could have more eggs," she giggled while the other smiled.

Both began to talk about their pasts, how they met their mates and how long they took to lay eggs. Both smiled happily laughing as if there was nothing wrong, but little do they know that it was the calm before the storm. During their alliance, they had gotten ridden of all the bad groups that had threaten to kill the royal family and take over the crown. They knew something was wrong when they thought that they had gotten ridden of all the rebels.

Five years passed and everything was at peace, they were going to sign an alliance against the most powerful creatures of their world, the dragons. King Furihata smiled as he walked to his wife and two sons, Shuuzou smiled playing with his younger brother, he is fifteen now and loved his kid brother to pieces, even though he doesn't show it. Kouki smiled as he caught the small flame bubbles he made. The queen smiled and walked up to her husband, giving him a kiss on his cheek, he smiled and put his arm around her shoulder.

"Kouki, look at this!" Takao had come to visit along while his family were at the dragon cove. They were going to meet at the dragon cove and leave Kazunari to his parents as they come back home.

"All right, we have to go. Your parents are probably waiting for you with the others." Shuuzou said holding Kouki by the hand, Kazunari held the other making Shuuzou wobble in the middle.

"Where are the kids?" asked queen Furihata looking around feeling scared all of a sudden.

"Here mama," Kouki giggled as he and Kazunari held on tighter to Shuuzou.

"Well, we must be offâ"€" the king all of a sudden heard screams of pure pain and terror. A dark presence washed over him as he and Shuuzou stood right in front of the queen and kids. Kouki and Kazunari both began to shake feeling really scared.

The queen went to check outside and gasped, she began to shake as she watched her people getting killed by their enemies, tears ran down her cheeks as some of the guards were fighting off, but they were caught unguarded and are losing. The doors opened and in came creatures, all evil and different race, demons, witches/warlocks, werewolves, hell hounds and ogres. The queen silently gasped as four witches and four warlocks stood right in front of them, all of them smirked and looked at them in the eyes. Kouki and Kazunari were shoved right behind the queen, she began to shake in fright, when some of the wolves had pieces of her people in their mouths and some are almost dying. She didn't let the children see as her people began to scream for forgiveness, she looked away seeing as he was sliced in half and ended his misery. Her heart hurt.

"We will cast a spell so that you will never comeback, such a small kingdom. Yet when you die you burst in flames and are reborn. But, not anymore. Once we slice you with our magical swords, even if one small drop of blood is caused by our swords, you will never comeback." one of them smirked as the other seven began to line up with her.

They began to chant a spell, and Kouki had tears running down his face.

"Why are you doing this?" the king asked.

"Because you murdered more than half of our comrades. And we want revenge, what better revenge is to start with the smallestâ"€"yet the most helpful kingdom. With only a single tear, you saved a life, heal the sick, close the wound. This way the other kingdoms will not get their tears." she smirked as her eyes glared at the children.

"Please have mercy on the young, they are not at fault." the queen began to cry, but they all laughed as if it was the funniest joke in their world.

"Never, now." she pointed as some of the vampires attacked, the queen screamed holding the children to her chest, both boys were crying already.

"Get them out of here," her mate said throwing her something shiny, he also shoved Shuuzou with her as he turned with a sword out already. He began to fight and dodge the sharp swords ready to slice him. He winced when one of the vampires sliced his cheek. Gritting his teeth he sliced his head off with a bit of satisfaction.

"Father!" Shuuzou screamed as his mother sprouted her crimson wings and took off to the air with all three children. He had tears running down his face as he saw the vampires bounce on his father taking his blood. He held his mother tight, she too was sobbing, but right now all she had in her mind was to save her children.

"Momâ"€"

"Not so fast!" a sword was thrust on his mother's chest, he saw that it almost sliced Kouki, and he thanked above that he was not touched by the sword.

"Open the doors to the other world!" she shouted as she threw a flame ball to the demon. He screamed as the flames devoured him, Shuuzou threw another flame ball when he saw more coming. But his were not as strong as his mother's, at least they were stopped by the fire.

A glowing pool of all colors opened and she went inside, Kouki felt like jumping on the mud, thick and and gooey. He closed his eyes when they were falling down, he looked up to see that the portal closed and no one else was following them. But he didn't know why they were falling harder and harder. Shuuzou sprouted his dark-red wings and tried to stop the fall as best as he could, but his young body could only handle so much weight. Especially his mother's wings that were still flapping, but didn't have anymore energy to keep them all up. He saw a lake and decided to guide them there instead of the hard ground.

A.O.D

A young boy of five was playing with his two older sisters, they were swimming inside the lake where their parents owned the cabin. It was passed down from generation to generation, and his older sister will inherit it when she gets older as his other sister get's the house. Kise was just happy how he is, his sisters stopped what they were doing and looked up. Kise looked up as well, his eyes widened when something was falling down from the sky. The girls were screaming as they swam away, the oldest grabbed him and got out still screaming. Their parents came out of the house running to see why they were screaming, the girls pointed up and they were just on time too see people coming down from the sky screaming. They saw the people make a huge splash and their mother gathered her children close to her, the children all still screaming, were shocked when they saw a woman with a light pink dress walking out. She was being held by a young teen and on her arms were two children, but that was not what they were shocked. They were shocked because the woman and teen had wings larger than their bodies, and the woman was bleeding from the middle of her chest. It seemed that the teen had guided them to the floor, so they didn't hit hard.

"Mom..." the oldest was shocked.

"What are they?" Mrs. Kise asked as her husband slowly walked towards them, "Honey be careful..." she said trailing off as the woman began to limp, blood still coming out of her wound.

"Can we help you?" the man asked slowly walking to them.

The woman reacted and held the children closer while the teen stood in front of the woman ready to fight. Both children were crying and looked beyond scared.

"I mean no harm, I just want to help you. We can call a doctor." he said and the woman fell down to her knees crying and paler.

"Please...my children..." she began to cry and the teen had tears running down his cheeks.

"I'll help," Mrs. Kise walked up to her, being a nurse, she took in her vitals.

"Mama..." Kise looked up to see his mother having a hard expression on her face.

"Not good, she's already dying..." she said as the woman was still on her knees, she too stayed holding her hands.

"Please...take...care...of...them..." she began to cough out blood, the brunette child saw and began to cry along with the other boy.

"I will, I promise...but what are you?" she saw the crown and she gasped it was made out of real gold and jewelry.

"We...I...can...n't...Shouuzou...Kouki...mommy and daddy...will...always...cough...love you...Kazunari...forgive me...and...watch...over them Shuuzou...my..." she fell to the ground landing on her side. The last of her tears fell down her beautiful face, Shuuzou began to cry as he held both Kouki and Kazunari.

"Iâ"€" the Kise family gasped as the body burst in flames, they were too shocked to scream when the flames devoured the body and left nothing. Blood gone as well.

"What are you?" Mr. Kise asked as Shuuzou looked up at the sky with tears falling down his cheeks.

"Phoenix..." was all he said as he looked at his two now family members. He will protect them no matter what comes at him.

"As in the legend phoenix?" one of the older girls wiped their golden eyes.

"Yes..." he said kissing Kouki on the side of his head.

Chapter II

A few months passed and Shuuzou had secretly trained on his own, he had gone to war just last summer, but he knew he needed to train harder in order to protect his brother and friend. He had flown at night through the woods and used some of the animals to practice with, and during the day he would study with the private tutor Mr. Kise hired to teach him everything from first grade up to the whole way of high school. His two family members were in school in Ryouta's year so they will not rise suspicion where they had come from. Their only cover story was that they were were in an accident and couldn't remember what had happened, and it helped them since they were covered in scratches and bruises. Mr. and Mrs. Kise had asked permission to tell Mrs. Midorima about their situation so she could help them. Shuuzou had agreed, but she was the only one to know and no one else. Their last names were changed to Kise and he never told his brother and Kazunari that night how no one had a high chance of surviving and hoped they will forget when the years come.

"Big brother, look at what Kazunari did!" Kouki smiled as he and Ryouta showed the boy closing his eyes.

"Why is it that I can see everything clearly?" Kazunari asked looking to one direction.

"What do you see?" Ryouta asked smiling.

"I see a man walking with a dog, and the dog is sniffing the grass." he said opening his silver eyes.

"Wow, I can't even see that far." Kouki said admiring his friend's talent.

"Well that's what all Hawkans special ability, and they are much faster than us." Shuuzou smiled seeing as the young prince awoken his inner powers.

"I wanna do that!" Kouki pouted and Shuuzou began to think.

If the enemies were still out looking for them then they might as well stay hidden here until he could find a way to get help and explain to them how everything happened. He will try to make them forget who they are so they could have a better chance in staying here and move on when the others began to age. If memory serves him correct, humans seemed to have only a hundred years life span maybe a little longer if they are lucky. Yes, that's what he will do when they grow and he will shove their memories back and hope to stay locked away forever.

"I said what are you thinking?" Kouki shouted, his cheeks were red and he was pouting.

"Nothing." he smiled as Kouki looked up to him.

"Mom said to come inside for dinner." the oldestâ€Kimi said, her younger sister, Kasumi nodded while she smiled.

They went inside and ate dinner, Ryouta talking about how his day had gone and he met his mom's boss's son. He looked exactly like her, green hair and eyes, he looked unique, Kazunari had been sick and didn't go to school with them. Shintarou was a kid that did not let anyone near him, he kept to himself and Ryouta would bug him to become friends in their strange group. Shintarou had no choice, but to let the blond take him wherever he wanted to go. Ryouta forced him to eat lunch with them and talked non stop about his short life and goals.

Shuuzou had noted that Kazunari's royal birth mark was on his right side, it's a silver wing. And he's another omega, and right now his mark was heating up. His body was changing from the inside telling him that he would be able to hatch the little ones once he was ready to mate. He put another cool patch on the child's head and watched as he was whimpering. Mrs. Kise was off that day and stayed by his side wanting to know how she could help.

"Is he going to be all right?" she asked seeing how the child was hot to the touch.

"Yes he will, this is only the beginning." Shuuzou said wiping off more sweat from the whimpering child.

"Beginning of what if I may ask?" she was curious and wanted to know so she won't feel so useless in the future.

"He is what you call an omega, you do know what that means right?" he asked as her eyes widened.

"Omega, then he will enter his heat?" she was so confused, she just learned that her world was not the only one out there and that there were mythical creatures living with them as her children.

"He's still too young, once he's a little older and finds a candidate mate...he will enter heat and if the dominant releases his seed inside, high chances is that he will carry his egg." Shuuzou said as the woman choked on her saliva.

"Men can get pregnant?" she asked in amazement.

"In our world if one is born with their royal mark on the left side, then they are the strong dominant, and if its on the right side then they are the omegas and are the ones to carry children. This does not apply to females or normal people, only royalty carry these marks. And they produce much stronger children than anything else." he answered seeing that she has not turned her back on them in their time of need.

"You're royals?" she asked eyebrows raised.

"Yes, I'm or was the heir to our small kingdom. And Kazunari is heir to his own kingdom, he is a Hawkan just like us a phoenix, but they are more faster and can see far more than our own eyes can. Kouki will soon go through these changes in a few more months, this used to happen when an omega was still a child. The only thing we can do is try to keep them cool so they won't start to hallucinate. They are rare in our world and a few born is dangerous." he said seeing that Kazunari was still a little flushed.

"Because they produce stronger children and are rare." she answered.

"Exactly, they fight to the death for them when there used to be singles and forced to mate with the winner even if its not their beloved." he said in slight disgust.

"So much new information," she whispered out loud in amazement.

"Yes," he said looking at her.

"Mama we're home!" Ryouta smiled as he hugged his mother, she smiled and hugged him back. Kouki just stood back seeing the blond kissing the woman. He felt sad that he would never do that to his mother again.

"Come on, you can come and give me a kiss too Kouki." she held out her hand towards the shy brunette.

"Uh..." he looked at his older brother as if to ask permission. Shuuzou sighed inside, this was one step forwards to move on and let him forget about the past. He forced a smile and Kouki smiled back hugging the woman, he too kissed her other cheek. Shuuzou kept forcing his smile as he cried inside, their last happy memory was of his father and mother smiling and looking their way, and he watched as both walked away from them before the attack, it's like they knew they were leaving them.

A.O.D

"What do you mean you couldn't find the murderers?" a growl was heard making everyone bow to their king trying to please him.

"We've looked everywhere, but the bodies had all disappeared, and the only ones there are those of other dead creatures." a brave guard said and shook when he heard a loud growl.

"Please keep looking, my only child was with them," Mrs. Takao sobbed on to her husband's chest as he looked up to his friend, the king of all dragons.

"Rest assure my friend, I will not stop until we find all of them. I'm sure they are still alive and in hiding." he said and walked out of the court room, king and queen Takao followed after him.

In the same court there was one lone woman glaring daggers at the dragon king, how she hated him for killing her mate and their egg. She walked away smiling that something went right her way disappearing from their view. No one paid her attention since she was no one of importance and kept on gossiping about the missing princes and how they might be dead, other protested that they are still alive since they never found the Hawkan prince.

"I smell a traitor among my people and maybe on yours too," said the dragon king making both flinch.

"My friend, how do we catch them?" asked the other royal.

"Only the three of us will meet here and discuss all of this matter where no one can hear." king Akashi said as he walked outside his secret room behind a family portrait.

"Yes," they both said, and they knew that their son is alive and in hiding. Maybe both princes were still alive and hid somewhere until they felt safe to come back home.

"Father," a child had called to him.

"Yes son,"

"I thought you were going to teach me how to enter war." Seijuurou looked at him as his father stood up and walked with his ten year old.

A.O.D

Years flew by and before they knew it, they were in their first year of high school. All the children that were small were not so small anymore, the four teens looked up at their new school. The two more excited teens cheered and ran inside to see if they have the same class, while two more stayed behind. Shintarou and Kouki slowly walked one with a bored face while the other looked nervous. Both Ryouta and Kazunari looked up and cheered as they posed in a weird way.

"Score we have the same class!" Ryouta shouted.

"One whole year with us Shin!" Kazunari laughed and Shintarou felt the biggest headache for the next year.

"That's great guys," Kouki smiled looking up at the board, he went through the names and stopped at two other names. Not caring, he followed the other three that walked ahead of him.

"Looks like it's going to be a fun year," Furihata heard someone talk next to him. He looked to see a raven-haired teen with one side covered and the other uncovered under his silver eye was a beauty mark.

"Should have stayed in the States," said a taller man with red hair and eyes said with annoyance.

"Come on Taiga relax, we can make new friends. Isn't that right?" now the raven-haired teen was looking at Kouki who blushed at getting caught listening in to their conversation.

"Sorry," he shook.

"Not a huge deal. I'm Tatsuya Himuro and this is Taiga Kagami, we were looking for these classes." he said giving the schedule to him.

Kouki read over it and smiled seeing that they had homeroom together and some classes as well. Ryouta noted Kouki talking to other people and bounced over to stare at them with a slight interest. He smiled seeing that Kouki was finally stopped being shy and talk to other people, he looked over the paper and smiled.

"We have homeroom together! Look Kazunariocchi and Shintarouchi!" the blonde said with a huge smile.

"That's awesome! I know high school will bring new adventures!" Kazunari said making some people looked at them and others kept walking knowing that group since middle school.

"Don't forget drama." Kouki sighed.

"And trouble." Shintarou glared holding a gulf ball that was his lucky item of the day.

"We can totally hang out together!" Ryouta said as Taiga decided that he rather eat his left arm than be seen with the blonde.

"Now, now Ryouta please don't scare them off." Kouki said trying hard not to let Ryouta intimidate the other two.

When the bell rang all of them decided to walk to class together and sit close to each other. It was a two sitting chart and Ryouta sat next to Kouki, Kazunari blushed lightly as he sat next to Shintarou, Tatsuya and Taiga sat next to each other and more students walked inside trying to find seats for themselves. Some of the girls squealed seeing the blonde model in their class and were jealous of Kouki for sitting next to their man. He felt stabs on the back of his head when the teacher was going over their rules, he glanced to sweat when he saw all the girls were glaring at him. Kouki wanted the earth to somehow swallow him up. They walked to lunch and found a spot outside under a tree, it was all the way far off and no one came by to bother them. Ryouta smiled as he ate their food that Kazunari prepared for them that morning.

"How is America?" Kouki asked out of curiosity, after he drank some of his juice.

"It's good, much different from here." Tatsuya answered with a small smile.

"What made you guys come back?" Shintarou glanced at Kazunari after he was done talking, a light blush dusted his cheeks when they made eye contact and he looked away.

"Our parents were transferred again and instead of going with them, we decided to come back to Japan and finish school here." Taiga shrugged looking at the sky.

"So you guys have a place of your own? Awesome can we come over sometime to hang out and talk about random stuff. Maybe later you can come to our home for dinner!" Ryouta smiled.

"I'm not sure is Shuuzou will like that..." Kazunari said with a thought on his face.

"Who's Shuuzou?" Taiga asked looking at the four people.

"He's our big brother," Kouki smiled at them.

"Speaking of brother, are you all related to each other?" Tatsuya asked hearing the name Kise from all three teens.

"Nah, we were adopted into the Kise family. Kazunari and I were to young to remember how. My brother was fifteen but he doesn't like talking about it..." Kouki said, his voice getting lower and lower.

"Sorry, didn't mean to bring back memories." Tatsyua said as Taiga rolled his eyes.

"Anyway..."

A.O.D

"We've looked around this world, and I know that they are not here." Daiki Aomine yawned as he scratched the back of his neck, he stretched out his smooth leathery wings behind his back following his comrades.

"Father did say that we have traitors that are living among us." Seijuurou Akashi said using his strong wings to keep at the front.

"These sweet fruits are almost gone as the season changes..." Atsushi Murasakibara mourned as he looked at his sack of fruits that are sweet, like candies.

"Please save them for later Atsushi, or else you will regret it." Tetsuya, Akashi's younger half brother said.

Their father had taken a mistress after Akashi was five years old and it resulted to hatch Tetsuya, but she was mysteriously killed when he was ten and Tetsuya was five. Their father never brought back another woman in case the same fate fell upon her. And to top it off, Tetsuya was born with a fire dragon on his right chest not only is Tetsuya his half brother, but an omega to boot off. He will have to be the one to pick his mate because he sure as hell will be dammed if someone tried to hurt his brother. The only people that know about his omega brother is their father, healer, and their close friends. They flew to were the kingdom once stood proudly and stood beautifully. Now it was dark, everything dead and it felt as if it were still crying for their royalty. Sei flew down landing on his feet and made his wings fold back into the slits of his back, everyone followed and looked around.

"Nothing, not even a clue." Daiki said from the ballroom, he looked at the dusted pictures. Taking his dark indigo wings out, he flew up to take a closer look at the picture of four.

"They truly did look beautiful." Kuroko said as he stood a little too close to the incubus demon prince.

"I wonder if their food is still good..." the fairy prince said and frowned after he checked the kitchens.

"Nothing, there is only one way to find out..." Sei grabbed one of his daggers and sliced the palm of his hand.

He let a few drops of blood come down to the floor and waited for a bit until a dark shadow floated right over them. It was red, like his eyes with a black outline, everyone that is royalty can only summon one familiar and will live as long as their master does not die. Sei looked at it and everyone was quiet.

"I didn't want to use you as of yet, but this is really important. I need you to find three people that their names are Shuuzou Furihata, Kouki Furihata and Kazunari Takao. The only thing I can provide you with a picture of both princes and hopefully the third prince will be with them. Once you find them, follow them for a few days and come back to take us where they are." Sei said watching the shadow look at the picture memorizing them and disappeared into flames.

"And you couldn't do this before because?" Daiki asked feeling his time wasted in finding dead people.

"Father had sent his familiar after them when tragedy struck them. But the familiar never came back, and it must be out there somewhere trapped by our enemies." Sei said.
